Lithium explorer looks forward to LithiumOre drilling, sees 'huge amount of lithium' in Nevada brine pool

Vince Ramirez, CEO of 3PL Operating Inc, tells Proactive Investors the privately held lithium exploration company working with LithiumOre (OTCQB: ORRP) to find lithium in Nevada that the company's brine pool is a third the size of the Salar de Atacama lithium pool in Chile, where Albemarle Corp (NYSE: ALB) and Sociedad Quimica y Minera de Chile (NYSE: SQM) both have claims.

Ramirez says at one third the size of Salar de Atacama, he assumes 3PL and LithiumOre have a third the amount of lithium within their pool. Ramirez says the company will need to sample more brine locations within the pool to prove this resource, and looks forward to LithiumOre's upcoming March 2019 drill program.
