Gatling Exploration Inc (CVE:GTR), the Ontario-focused gold explorer, is making progress on its bid to test the theory that the three deposits at its Larder gold project are all connected. The company recently reported new high-grade results from its largest step-out drill hole to date at the Bear deposit, including an intercept of 10.6 grams per ton (g/t) gold over 5 metres (m). "The successful results also represent the start of a new phase of step out drilling, designed to test the theory that our three deposits - Fernland, Cheminis and Bear - are all connected as one, very large mineralized system," said Nathan Tribble, the vice-president of exploration for Gatling.

Universal mCloud Corp (CVE:MCLD) (OTCMKT:MCLDF), which operates in the burgeoning world of artificial intelligence and the Internet of Things (IoT), said Thursday that it planned to expand its AssetCare offering with new capabilities that incorporate next-generation technologies. The company said its AssetCare platform would include advanced industrial IoT sensors, AI-powered aerial capabilities with drones, and digital twins for process simulation and 3D virtual facility walk-downs. The first of these capabilities is expected to go live in the fourth quarter and has the potential to bolster mCloud's ability to generate revenue. To lead these developments, the company also announced that James Christian has joined mCloud as vice president of Emerging Solutions.

Cabral Gold Inc (CVE:CBR) is progressing with exploration on a new target that has never been investigated at the company's Cuiú Cuiú gold project in Brazil. Exploration work at the Climar target area is aimed at identifying the source of placer gold, particularly a coarse gold nugget group produced from streams. Climar is 10 kilometres east of the Central gold deposit and 7km northeast of the Moreira Gomes deposit on the Cuiú Cuiú property.

The Green Organic Dutchman Holdings Ltd (TSE:TGOD) (OTCMKTS:TGODF) said that demand for its organic cannabis has exceeded its expectations since its launch in Ontario in end-August. In a statement Thursday, the company said that its high-THC signature strain, known as Unite Organic, has performed well enough online and in dispensaries that the Ontario Cannabis Store purchased a second order earlier than expected. The company plans to distribute to other provinces in the coming months and launch nationally in early 2020.

LexaGene Holdings Inc (CVE:LXG) (OTCMKTS:LXXGF) announced Thursday plans to place its LX Analyzer beta unit into ProVerde Laboratories Inc, one of the largest hemp-cannabis testing reference laboratories in Massachusetts. ProVerde Laboratories is one of three independent laboratories accredited by the state of Massachusetts to test hemp and cannabis products for contaminants such as pesticides and pathogens, including bacteria, mold, or other dangerous microorganisms, according to a statement. LexaGene's LX Analyzer is designed to test a variety of sample types for harmful pathogens that cause adverse reactions in humans and animals.
