Galantas Gold to update exploration work at Omagh, may undertake more drilling

Galantas Gold Corporation (LON:GAL) (CVE:GAL) is carrying out a review of its exploration work at the Omagh gold mine in Northern Ireland, with a view to updating its technical report on the property.

Part of the proposed work may involve a core drilling program, the group added.

A report published in May 2020 indicated enhanced drilling opportunities, with the potential to expand and further define the resource base local to the mine development.

A new Technical Report, as defined by Canadian National Instrument 43-101, has commenced and will likely include the results of chip channel samples taken during recent mine development on-vein.

It will also include results of core drilling that has taken place since 2014 and may potentially include additional drilling.

Details of the potential drilling program, which will mainly concentrate on Kearney, Kerr, Joshua and Elkins veins, will mostly be conducted underground and will be announced when the review is complete, Galntas said.
